

Fayetteville State University Professor Receives Lifetime Achievement Award

The American Society of Criminology will honor Emily Lenning, Ph.D., professor of criminal justice at Fayetteville State University with its 2022 Teaching Award. The distinction is a lifetime-achievement award recognizing excellence in undergraduate or graduate teaching over the span of an academic career.

On its website, the society notes Lenning's ability to meet the needs of diverse learners, and that she challenges herself and her students to look beyond the classroom for opportunities to engage in lifelong learning.

"It is an honor to receive this award, and to be recognized by such a prestigious organization for doing what I love most," said Lenning. "I am grateful for the support of my colleagues in the Department of Criminal Justice and for my students, past and present, who have made teaching such a rewarding experience."

Details can be found here: <https://asc41.com/about-asc/awards/#toggle-id-25>

