

I am Quaveon McCallum but most people call me Qua or Quavo. It's just simpler.

Yeah, I'm from Charlotte, NC. I'm a sophomore here at Fayetteville State University and I'm majoring in Computer Science.

Some of the clubs and organizations that I'm a part of – I'm a global scholar, it allows me to stay in this excellent place, Hackley. I love it. It's really my favorite. I'm part of the student activities council, I'm the administrative assistant there. I'm also a Bronco Ambassador, so yeah, I get pretty involved on campus.

Dr. Samby, he's really one of my favorites. He really stayed after and helped you a lot after class or whenever outside of his office hours. He really done more than necessary to make sure that you will succeed which is really great about this university.

One there are so many opportunities because a lot of people do tend to go off to other schools which have a lot more students but one of the things I do love about this university, it has so many opportunities because there aren't as many people that get these opportunities. Like me myself, I'm on a full ride academic scholarship. So that wasn't available to me at other universities, but I got it here. Another one of the things is a family environment. The family environment is really great. All the people here they all speak, smile, so yeah, those are just some of the things I love about this school.

Why am I proud to be a bronco? That goes back into so many opportunities and uh things I've gotten to do just by my second year being here. A lot of things, like when I go back home a lot of people say Qua you just grown so much and I really do think it's me being a product of my university.
